

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Application software on a fault tolerant system having an active engine and a standby engine is upgraded. As part of the upgrade, the system determines if the active engine and the standby engine are executing different versions of the application software. The system sends a description of work units from the active engine to the standby engine and sends database activities from the active engine to the standby engine.

10003-10401
FOIA b 7 - D